ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 1023-62-SM—Hohmann and Barnard, Long Island City, New York, filed for approval of the material known as Hohmann and Barnard Precast Concrete Panel Inserts, various models, under the provisions of C26-446.0, C26-437.0.2 and 3, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Insert cast into concrete panels to secure the panels to a structure.

DESCRIPTION: The requested types of inserts are cast from Grade A malleable iron conforming to ASTM-A47-33 specifications. These inserts are cast into precast concrete panels to receive bolts to secure the panels to the structural frame of the building.

The types PCW, HW & LW inserts have an inside wedge-shape track to match askew head bolts. This wedging action prevents slippage of the bolt head in the insert. The types HW & LW inserts are cast with loops projecting at the rear to provide greater bonding area. Also a reinforcing bar may be put through the loop to provide additional bonding area. The type PCW inserts are cast with a "Tee" bar projecting at the rear to provide greater bonding area. INSPECTION & TEST: Shear and tension tests were conducted by Pittsburgh Testing Laboratories. These inserts were tested with and without reinforcing bars in the projecting loops. The tensile tests all showed failure in the bolts. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Hohmann and Barnard Precast Concrete Panel Inserts as herein described for voluntary use in New York City as a means of attaching panels to the structural frame of a building under the following conditions: that the inserts may only be used in stone concrete; that the recommended shear and tension loads be as follows: $\frac{1}{2}$ " bolt—1900 lbs., $\frac{5}{8}$ " bolt—3000 lbs., and $\frac{3}{4}$ " bolt—4500 lbs., and that all cartons in which the material is marketed shall be labeled "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 1023-62-SM". For Applicant: None.

ACTION OF BOARD—Application reopened and resolution amended in accordance with the report and recommendation of the Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Chairman Foley, Vice Chairman Kleinert, Commissioner Becker and Commissioner Klein 4
Negative: Commissioner Fox 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 644-51-SM—Amendment to resolution as to additional fire resistive floor and roof construction.

Granco Steel Company, St. Louis, Missouri, requested that the resolution adopted July 27, 1954 and amended through February 16, 1961, under Cal. No. 644-51-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include an additional fire resistive floor and roof construction.

PROPOSED USE: Three-hour fire resistive floor and roof construction and 4 Hr. beam.

DESCRIPTION: The construction consisted of a blend of cellular and corrugated steel floor units. The cellular units are of two types. The first is a nominal 12" wide by 1 3/4" deep and consists of a "T" shape bottom piece of 16 gauge steel welded to a "U" top piece of 16 gauge steel which formed two 3 3/4" wide cells. The other cellular unit is a 26" wide by 1 5/8" deep, and consisted of a bottom section of 16 gauge steel, three top pieces of 16 gauge steel and 9/32" diameter steel rods welded 8" on centers, perpendicular to the corrugations. The corrugated units are 30" wide by 1-5/16" deep of 24 gauge steel and provided with No. 4 Steel wire gauge rods welded 4 1/2" on centers, perpendicular to the corrugations.

Shear connectors are used in conjunction with the beam and slab to afford composite action. Negative reinforcement is provided by means of 5/8" bars supported on 2" high chairs; this reinforcement is omitted over the 12" wide cell units.

The concrete placed on top of the cellular units is with 10 gauge steel wire mesh over the 12" wide cell units.

The sprayed asbestos used in the construction has been approved by the Board under Cal. No. 502-53-SM.

The erection of the system is as follows: The steel beam is first put in place and then the steel floor units are installed and fastened to the steel beam with shear connectors, which are welded to the beam through the floor units.

MINUTES

The reinforced concrete is then placed over the floor units to a depth of 4½" over the bottom corrugations of the floor units.

The underside of the floor units and the beam were protected by the application of the sprayed fireproofing. The beam was protected by ¾ inch thickness of the sprayed fireproofing "Spraycraft", applied directly to and following the contour of the beam. The floor units were then sprayed with the same material following the contour with the exception of the 26 inch wide unit which had the corrugations filled with the asbestos. The thickness was as follows—Crest of Corrugations—¾ inch, Bottom of corrugations—½ inch. Flat Plates under the cells—9/16 inch. These thicknesses are all tamped thickness with a density of 13-9 lbs./cu. ft.

The construction is in accordance with Dwgs. 1, 1A, 1B, and 1C of R-2923-20, which are on file with and are part of the record.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The assembly was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590. Administrative Building Code. The construction of the floor system successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive construction and the test was continued for 4 Hours for the beam and met the requirements of a 4 Hr. beam. The complete report R-2923-20 is on file with and part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted July 27, 1954 and amended through February 16, 1961, under Cal. No. 644-51-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional construction as herein described as a three-hour fire resistive floor and roof construction and a four-hour fire resistive beam, on condition that the construction comply with the drawings 1, 1A, 1B, and 1C of R-2923-20, which are on file with the record, and further that all requirements of the resolution adopted July 27, 1954 and amended through February 16, 1961, under Cal. No. 644-51-SM, are complied with.

ACTION OF BOARD—Application reopened and resolution amended in accordance with the report and recommendation of the Committee on Test.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
502-53-SM—Amendment to resolution as to additional fire resistive rating.

Smith & Kanzler Company, Linden, New Jersey requested that the resolution adopted December 4, 1956 and amended through December 8, 1964, under Cal. No. 502-53-

SM, be reopened and amended so as to include additional fire resistive floor and ceiling construction.

PROPOSED USE: Fire resistive floor and roof construction.

DESCRIPTION: There has been no change in the basic material from that presently approved. The additional construction is in the amount of the material "Spraycraft" that is applied to the deck and to the structural beam.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The material was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories as a component part of a floor construction in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0, through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code. The constructions were as follows:

System (1) The construction consisted of a 2½ inch concrete floor over a steel floor consisting of cellular and fluted units. There were two beams in the test assembly so that various thicknesses of the fireproofing could be applied prior to the test. The beams were fireproofed by the application of Spraycraft following the contour of the beams, 1½ inches on one beam, and 1⅜ inches on the other beam. The deck was protected by ¾ inches of Spraycraft, as measured from the bottom plane of the floor units. The flutes of the fluted section were filled with the material Spraycraft. The average density was 18 lbs./cu. ft. The construction is in accordance with Dwg. 1, R 2923-5, which is on file with and is part of the record. Both the beams and the floor construction successfully met the requirements of four-hour fire resistive ratings.

System (2) This system consisted of a floor construction used in conjunction with a fireproofed beam. The applicant has only requested action on the fireproofing of the beam. The beam was protected with ½ inch of Spraycraft with a density of 14 lbs./cu. ft. The beam successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive construction. The complete report R 2923-19 is on file with and is part of the record.

System (3) This system consisted of a floor construction of cellular and corrugated units with a concrete topping, and the underside of the units protected with Spraycraft. The beam included in the construction was also protected with Spraycraft.

The floor units consisted of a blend of cellular and corrugated units. The cellular units were of two types: The first is a 12 inch wide by 1¾ inches deep and consisted of a "T" shaped bottom piece of 16-gauge steel welded to a "U" shape top piece of 16-gauge steel which formed two 3¾ inch wide cells. The other cellular unit is 26 inches wide by 1½ inches deep and consisted of a bottom section of 16-gauge steel, three top pieces of 16-gauge steel and 9/32 inch diameter steel rods welded 8 inches on center perpendicular to the corrugations. The corrugated units are 30 inches wide, 1-5/16 inches deep of 24-gauge steel and provided with No. 4 steel wire gauge steel rods welded 4½ inches on center perpendicular to the corrugations.

The floor units are first installed and shear connectors are used with the corrugated units and are welded through the units to the beam to provide composite action. Negative reinforcement, placed on 2 inch high chairs, is then installed except over the 12 inch wide cell units where a wire fabric of 10-gauge steel wire, 6 x 6 inch mesh, is used. Concrete is then poured over the floor units to a depth of 4½ inches over the bottom corrugations of the floor units.

The fireproofing is then applied to the underside of the deck and to the beam. The thickness was as follows: Beam following the contour ¾ inch. Crest of corrugations ¾ inch, Bottom of corrugations—½ inch. Flat plate under cells 9/16 inch. The 26 inch wide units has the corrugation filled with the fireproofing material. The density was 13.5 lbs./cu. ft. for the beam and 13.9 lbs./cu. ft. for the deck. The construction is in accordance with Dwgs. 1, 1A, 1B, and 1C of R 2923-20, which is on file with and is part of the record. This construction successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive floor construction and four-hour fire resistive beam protection. The complete report R 2923-20 is on file with and is part of the record. RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted December 4, 1956 and amended through December 8, 1964, under Cal. No. 502-53-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include the construction as herein described with their respective fire resistive ratings as described under "Inspection and Test", on condition that the requirements of the resolution adopted December 4, 1956 and amended through December 8, 1964, under Cal. THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 501-60-SA—American Sterilizer Company, Jamaica, New York, filed for approval of the appliance known as Rectangular "C" Ethylene Oxide Sterilizer, Model RB-4884R, under the provisions of C26-191.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: For use in hospitals or in establishments manufacturing materials requiring sterilization.

DESCRIPTION: The RB-4884R unit is a vacuum-pressure type sterilizer with steam jacket and is made of open hearth, flange quality steel, 55,000-65,000 pounds tensile strength. The loading door is made with a dished head and a smooth gasket frame. Its opening size is 42" x 48". The length of the sterilizer is 84". If desired, doors can be provided at both ends for loading at one end and unloading at the other end. The latter could be placed in a separated area for hygienic reasons.

The end frames for the unit are fabricated from hot rolled steel sections and are welded between the inner and outer shells. The outer shell extends beyond the end frame and is slotted to receive the door locking bars. These bars are taper turned of cold finished high tensile steel and are actuated by a central handwheel. A diaphragm type locking clutch is provided as a safety device on the door.

The design of the sterilizer chamber is according to the ASME code for a maximum internal working pressure of 33 psi. Steam, from a remote source, is supplied to the jacket space at 7 psi to maintain a chamber temperature of approximately 130°F.

A console is provided with controls for the operation of initial vacuum followed by admission of gas charge, timing of exposure period, terminal vacuum and break of vacuum by admission of air through a bacterial retentive filter. It also has pressure and temperature controls and a humidity control which allows addition of moisture, if required, at any time in the cycle.

A vacuum pump is used which is capable of producing at least 28½" of mercury vacuum. This pump is used to exhaust the sterilizing chamber to outdoors through a vent line.

A Lonergan pressure relief valve, set at 36 psi, is provided for chamber protection.

The sterilizing gas used is a mixture of 88% halogenated hydrocarbon-R12 and 12% ethylene oxide supplied in an I.C.C. cylinder.

The loading door cannot be opened while there is pressure within the chamber.

An interlock is also provided so that sterilizing gas cannot be admitted to the chamber unless prior evacuation of the chamber has been completed.

A high temperature cutout is provided to prevent possible damage to the load. In case of over temperature, the cycle will be stopped and evacuation of the chamber will be necessary before cycle can be restarted. A manual reset button is provided on the control.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as American Sterilizer Rectangular "C" Ethylene Oxide Sterilizer, Model RB-4884R for use in New York City in accordance with this report and the requirements of the Fire Commissioner in regard to the safe storage and use of the sterilizing gas and the equipment, provided that each sterilizer shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
756-63-SA—Continental Water Conditioning Corp., El Paso, Texas filed for approval of the appliance known as Continental Water Deionization Service Units, Models 100, 200 and 300, under the provisions of C26-191.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: To deionize tap water.

DESCRIPTION: The container and flow tube are manufactured of a styrene base plastic of the ABS type. The wall thickness is $\frac{1}{8}$ inches. Inside of this tank are stainless steel screens at both top and bottom which acts to hold the filtering resins in place.

The container is filled with an ion exchange resin, purchased from Rohm & Hass. The resins used are either of two types depending on the application. The resins are known as Amberlite 1R-120 and Amberlite 1RA-410. These resins are designed specifically for laboratory use. The resin 1R-120 is a cation exchanger (a positive ion) which is strongly acidic and is a polystyrene nuclear sulfonic type furnished in bead form and is resistant to attrition and chemical attack. The resin 1RA-410 is an anion exchanger (a negative ion) which is basic type and is a polystyrene quaternary amine type furnished in bead form and is resistant to attrition, acids, alkalis, and common organic solvents.

In operation, tap water enters the tank through an inlet valve, percolates through the resin, enters into an outlet tube and is drawn off.

The model designation refer to gallonage, ranging from $\frac{3}{4}$ gpm to 5 gpm.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The container has been approved by the Department Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, insofar as the electrical components after the objection of the open probe terminals was overcome by making it impossible to remove the signal light from the housing assembly.

The applicant has submitted a certificate of approval from the City of Los Angeles.

The applicant has also submitted a report from the Department of Water Supply, Gas & Electricity as to the efficiency of a demineralizing action. This report states in brief, as follows:

Test A

1. Inoperative period from April 22, 1964 through June 28, 1964, apparently did not affect efficiency of unit.
2. Effective removal of influent Hardness and Alkalinity, and reduction of Sp. Conductivity after passage through unit indicates efficient demineralizing action. As noted under Item 3—Table 2, except for 1 run using 1704 gallons of water, the conductivity did not exceed 2 mmhos/cm. Two subsequent runs of 165 and 95 gallons yielded conductivities of 2 mmhos/cm.
3. Average Bacteria Counts were slightly higher in the treated water. Actual distribution is given under Item 7—Table 2.
4. Item 8 indicates insignificant increase in Coliform Density in the treated water.
5. Water passing through the unit generally acquired some odor as noted in Table 3.

Test B

This test indicates that as much as 1370 gallons of water when passed through the unit yielded water of extremely low conductivity (1 mmhos/cm or less). Subsequent runs yielded water of slightly higher conductivity which for most uses is insignificant.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Continental Water Deionization Service Units, Models 100, 200 and 300 for voluntary use in New York City, under C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code, to deionize New York City tap water, on condition that the unit be serviced at least every six months and that each unit bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 756-63-SA".

PROPOSED USE: Joists used in all classes of construction.

DESCRIPTION: The joists are manufactured in depths ranging from 8 to 24 inches. The top chords are formed of angles, the bottom chords of either angles or round bars, and the webs are round bars. The top chord angles range from 1" x 1" x 1/8" to 2" x 2" x 3/16". The bottom chord angles range from 1" x 1" x 1/8" to 1 1/2" x 1 1/2" x 3/16". The round bars used for the bottom chord range from 1/2" to 27/32". The web members range from 1/2" to 7/8". The joists are designed in accordance with the Standard Specifications and Load Tables, Open Web Steel Joists—1963 Edition of Steel Joist Institute.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Tests were conducted by Jureit Associates Laboratories, Inc., Miami, Florida, to show compliance with as shown under C26-519.0.d.1 Administrative Building Code.

The load tables submitted by the applicant are based on total load (live and dead) and it was necessary to determine what percentage of the load would cause a deflection of 1/360 of the span. The figured loading is based on design moment of the total load; therefore, the test was conducted to determine what percentage of the load would cause a deflection of 1/360 of the span and allow that percentage of the total load to be assumed as the live load.

MINUTES

The tests showed that the load required to cause a deflection of 1/360 of the span was in excess of 70%.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as M & S Steel Joists Series J for use in New York City, when installed in accordance with the requirements of C26-519.0. The Committee further recommends approval of the load tables of the J Series Joists as submitted in the catalogue described as M & S Steel Company, Inc.—October 1, 1963, except that the loads shown in that catalogue begin based on total load (live and dead) shall be figured on the basis of 70% of the total load as the maximum live load, and 30% of that total load as the minimum dead load. It is further recommended that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

777-63-SA—C. M. Shapiro & Sons for Manhattan Blower Corp., Brooklyn, New York, filed for approval of the appliance known as Manhattan Blower Make Up Air Heater (gas-fired) under the provisions of Article 12, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Gas-fired heater (Industrial Use). (Roof Installation)

DESCRIPTION: The heater is intended to be used in conjunction with and not in lieu of the buildings main heating system and is intended to replenish warm air, into the space, exhausted by the exhaust system.

The heater consists of the cabinet, rain cap, filters, a motorized damper, motor driven blower, Maxon burner and controls.

The safety devices consists of two groups: the air flow group and the combustion group. The air flow group consists of a temperature controller to maintain the heated air at the desired temperature, a high temperature cutoff to provide protection from excessive temperature, an air flow switch to stop the entire unit, if the blower is not pumping air through the system, and an interlock with the exhaust system to require concurrent operation. The combustion group consists of an electric spark plug serving a continuous gas pilot and monitored by a flame rod assembly, a gas pressure regulator, low gas pressure cutoff switch, a pilot gas line normally closed solenoid valve, and a main gas line normally closed solenoid valve (with a manual reset). The combustion controller provides for an automatic purge prior to lighting off the unit.

The control package is arranged to fail safe, that is, the detection of a malfunction by any one component will cause the unit to shut down as will an electrical power failure.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Details of construction were examined by Assistant Engineer J. A. Darts.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Manhattan Blower Make Up Air Heater (gas-fired) (Roof Installation) as herein described for voluntary use in New York City. The installation of these heaters shall comply with the requirements of C26-690.0 through C26-696.0, Administrative Building Code, except that the heater need not be connected to a lgal chimney or separate flue. Plans for each installation shall be filed with Department of Buildings for approval.

Each unit shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 777-63-SA".

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 975-64-SA—American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation, New York, New York, filed for approval of the appliance known as American Standard GPR and PH Series Gas-Fired Boilers under the provisions of Article 12, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code. These boilers are also to be marketed by the General Electric Company under their name and model designation.

PROPOSED USE: Hot water heating boilers for residential or commercial use.

DESCRIPTION: The GPR gas-fired boiler is made up of vertically stacked cast iron sections enclosed in an insulated circular shaped jacket of finished steel. The boiler section assembly is mounted on a dry base made of steel. A steel enclosure between the bottom section and the base forms the combustion chamber. A burner drawer assembly housing case iron drilled port burners slides into the combustion chamber. This burner assembly is fitted with a gas manifold, safety pilot and an automatic gas valve installed on the line, which will shut off gas supply to the burners in case of pilot flame failure. Water temperature limit controls are used to prevent excessive water temperature and an electrically driven water circulator is installed on the boiler exterior for forced circulation of hot water through the heating system.

Provision is made for a flue connection through a draft hood.

The Model GPR boiler is made in two sizes, having output ratings of 60,000 and 80,000 Btu per hour, which are designated as the Model GPR-60 and GPR-80, respectively.

The Model GPH boiler is similar to the GPR, except that it has a square shaped outer steel jacket, has steel ported burners instead of the drilled port cast iron burners and has larger capacity. It is made in three sizes with output ratings of 100,000, 135,000 and 170,000 Btu per hour, designated as the GPH-100, GPH-135 and GPH-170, respectively.

Increases in output ratings from 60,000 Btu per hour are accomplished by installing an additional boiler section in the Model GPR-80, and by installing additional sections and burners in the larger sizes.

All boilers are constructed and tested in accordance with A.S.M.E. code requirements and an A.S.M.E. rated relief valve is provided as standard equipment for each.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

These boilers have been tested and approved by the American Gas Association.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as American Standard Gas-Fired Boilers, Models GPR-60, GPR-80, GPH-100, GPH-135, and PH-170 for use in New York City under the provisions of Article 12, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code when installed with minimum clearances from combustible material not less than those specified in the approval of the American Gas Association, but sufficient to allow proper servicing of the equipment, and provided that each boiler shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 975-64-SA".

The Committee further recommends that these boilers, Models GPR-60, GPR-80, GPH-100, GPH-135, and GPH-170 may be marketed by the General Electric Company as their Models 21GW075A2-C, 21GW100A2-C, 21GW125A2-C, 21GW170A2-C, and 21GW215A2-C, respectively.

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

723-40-SA—Amendment to resolution as to additional hoistway door hanger.

Otis Elevator Company, New York, requested that the resolution adopted October 28, 1941 and amended April 18, 1961, under Cal. 723-40-SA, be reopened and amended so as to include an additional hoistway door hangers.

PROPOSED USE: Hangers for hoistway doors.

DESCRIPTION: The Otis Type 7087 Hanger is used with all types of horizontal sliding elevator hoistway doors as shown on arrangement drawing 7087A enclosed.

The difference in design between this and the previously approved Type 7060 hanger is as follows:

1. The hanger bracket (dwg. #389P) is now a ductile iron casting. It is slightly offset to accommodate the hoistway door equipment such as locks, closers, and drive mechanisms required with two speed and center opening panels.

2. The hanger track remains 2" wide by 1/2" thick. However, in some cases a header that has a track rolled integral with it, is used.

3. Two types of hanger rollers are used—either (1) An all steel roller shown on drawing 456CY or (2) A polyurethane tired roller shown on drawing 456CX. As the tire is entirely within the confines of the steel roller flanges, the rollers cannot become disengaged from the track.

4. The hanger parts are all designed to withstand a load of 600 lbs. without exceeding a stress of 13,600 lbs./sq. in. This more than complies with rule 110.10d of the S.A.E. Code as door panels rarely weigh more than 150 lbs.

The Otis Heavy Duty Integral Hanger is also used with all types of horizontal sliding hoistway doors as shown in drawing A6178Y enclosed.

This hanger uses the same rollers and track, and is substantially the same as the Type 7087 hanger except that the hanger bracket is made of formed steel which is welded to and becomes an integral part of the door.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted October 28, 1941 amended April 18, 1961, under Cal. 723-40-SA, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional hangers as herein described, on condition that the requirements of the resolution adopted October 28, 1941, and amended April 18, 1961 under Cal. 723-40-SA, be complied with.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
Cal. No. 750-64-SA—S. T. Johnson Company, Bridgeport, Pennsylvania, filed for approval of the appliance known as S. T. Johnson Company's Combination Oil or Gas Burners, Model C53 and BC53, under the provisions of the Oil Burner Rules of the Board and Article 12 Chap. 26 Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Combination burners for use on heating and process boilers and furnaces.

DESCRIPTION: The C53 combination burner consists of a horizontal rotary cup type oil burner installed within a circumferential gas burner.

A fuel selector switch is used to control burner operation so that only one fuel—heavy oil or natural gas—may be burned at a time. Primary combustion air for either fuel is supplied by a propeller fan directly driven by an electric motor—belt driven on the BC53. This air enters the fire box through cast iron nozzles placed in between the rotary cup opening and the gas burner ports.

On starting, with the selector switch set at the "oil" position, oil will flow through a pump and an approved electric preheater mounted beneath the burner assembly into the rear skirt of the rotating cup where centrifugal force carries the oil forward. The oil breaks up at the edge of the cup and escapes radially into the surrounding high velocity air stream and is ignited. The source of ignition is a gas flame and electric spark.

When the selector switch is in the "gas" position, gas fuel is supplied through a pressure regulator and motorized gas valve to the gas burner ports.

The C53 burner can be swung out of firing position for inspection. A switch is built into the latching device so that the burner cannot be operated when it is out of firing position. Gas piping need not be disturbed since the gas burner is in the stationary part of the unit which is bolted to the firebox front plate.

Operating controls include a combustion safety and programmer control of the electronic type, safety limit control, ignition transformer, ignition gas valve, magnetic oil valve, and gas shutoff valves.

These burners are made in the following sizes:

Size	Motor H.P.	Oil G.P.H.	Gas C.F.H.	Oil Heater K.W.
25	1/3	8½	1275	2
50	½	17	2550	2
75	¾	25	3750	2
100	1	34	5100	2
150	1½	50	7500	3

300	3	100	15000	5
400	4	135	20250	5
500	7½	168	25200	10

INSPECT AND TEST: The Model C53 and BC53 combination burners were tested and approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories, Files MP218, MP1130.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as S. T. PROPOSED USE: Automatic sliding entrance. (Non-rated)

DESCRIPTION: The door is a complete unit consisting of an aluminum frame of extruded sections, consisting of a sill member, jamb section and a head section in which is housed the activating mechanism, track, door hangers, and load bearing wheels. The fixed and sliding door panels are housed within the frame members.

The extruded sections are of 6063-T5 aluminum alloy not less than 0.125 inches in thickness.

Swing-out panels or breakaway swing-out panels within the sliding panels may be provided. A magnetic swing device holds the panels in a closed position and the swing-out panels are activated only when a power failure occurs. The sliding panel will not operate when the swing-outs are open.

The activating mechanism consists of a cylinder with a single air driven piston that moves in the same plane as the door. A 24-volt electrical control system is used to control the air. The air movement controls the door at all times and there are no springs or other mechanism. In case of electrical power failure, all air is shut off and the door is manually operable.

The air supply is provided by means of a complete unit with supply tank, compressor, motor, regulator safety valve, and pressure cutoff switch. The controls on the compressor are set to "cut in" at 50 p.s.i. and "cut out" at 80 p.s.i.

The operation of the door may be activated in various ways, among them being floor mats, switches, radio control, or sonic devices.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Details of construction were examined by Assistant Engineer J. A. Darts. The electrical features of the door have been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories. The report is on file with and is part of the record.

COURT DECISION.

Matter of Morkin Realty Corp. vs. Foley—At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Samansky rendered the following decision in the New York Law Journal of May 4, 1965, page 18:

"This is a proceeding pursuant to article 78 of the CPLR directing respondents to accept petitioner's application for an extension of the period to complete construction of a building, retroactive to December 15, 1964, and to act on such application for the extension to complete construction of the building had to be filed on December 15, 1964, and that due to financial difficulties encountered by the petitioner and confusion in their offices, petitioner omitted to file the application and that the omission was not discovered until the latter part of January, 1965. Petitioner sought to file the application for extension on January 26, 1965, but the application was rejected by respondents on January 28, 1965, on the alleged ground that respondents had no authority to grant the extension. This court is unable to agree with this contention. In the opinion of the court the failure to timely file its application was due solely to inadvertance and oversight. Accordingly the motion is granted. Settle order on notice. Calendar Number 2798-BZY; Premises 415 Stratford Road, Block No. 5154, Lot No. 47, Borough of Brooklyn.

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

388-60-SM—Amendment to resolution as to additional fire resistive construction.

United States Gypsum Company, New York, requested that the resolution adopted July 6, 1960 and amended through July 14, 1964, under Cal. No. 388-60-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include additional fire resistive beam protection.

PROPOSED USE: Three-hour fire resistive beam protection.

DESCRIPTION: The material, Firecode Fireproofing Plaster, is a mill mixed gypsum plaster and has been approved under this Calendar Number. The request is for a lesser thickness of the applied material to afford a three-hour protection for steel beams.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The beam was tested in conjunction with a floor assembly at the Underwriters' Laboratories. The construction consisted of the steel beam supporting a floor consisting of a concrete floor on a blend of cellular and fluted steel floor units with a trench header and protected by Firecode Fireproofing Plaster applied directly to the steel.

As the applicant has only requested approval of the beam protection, the description of the test specimen will only cover the beam.

The plaster is applied directly to and follows the contour of the beam to a thickness of $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch with an air dry density of 21.3 lbs. per cu. ft.

The beam, so protected, successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive beam. The complete report, R-4142-14, is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted July 6, 1960 and amended through July 14, 1964, under Cal. No. 388-60-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional construction as herein described, namely, three-hour fire resistive beam when protected with $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch of Firecode Fireproofing Plaster applied directly to and following the contour of the beam, on condition that all other of the requirements of the resolution adopted July 6, 1960 and amended through July 14, 1964, under Cal. DESCRIPTION: There has been no change in the deck from that approved by the Board, June 11, 1963 under Cal. No. 751-62-SM.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The deck was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code, as a component part of a three-hour fire resistive floor construction.

The deck consisted of a blend of fluted and cellular units. The fluted units are fabricated of a single section of 16 gauge steel and the cellular units are fabricated of a fluted section of 18 gauge steel spot welded to a flat section of 16 gauge steel to form the unit. The units are 24¼" wide by 3" deep.

The deck is first installed and hangers, as required under C26-461.0 Administrative Building Code, are then installed.

Concrete is poured to a depth of 2½ inches over the top plane of the floor units.

Cold rolled channels, to support the light fixtures, air ducts and suspended ceiling, are then installed on 4'-0" centers perpendicular to the floor units and are attached to the required hangers.

The "Z" runners, to support the suspended ceiling tile, are installed on 2'-0" centers perpendicular to the cold rolled channels and are clipped to the channels by means of 1½" wide runner clips.

The ceiling tile, ¾" thick, is then installed by inserting the kerfed edge of the tile into the lower flange of the "Z" runners.

The ceiling was made continuous over and around the light fixtures by means of boxes fabricated of the same material as the tile.

The construction is in accordance with Dwg. R4647-5, which is on file with and which is part of the record, and it should be noted that there was no steel beam in the construction.

The construction successfully met the code requirements of a three-hour fire resistive floor construction. The complete report, R 4647-5, is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted June 11, 1963 and amended June 2, 1965, under Cal. No. 751-62-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include the construction as herein described as a three-hour fire resistive floor construction, on condition that the construction comply with Dwg. R-4647-5, except that wires shall not be used as hangers; hangers to be as required under C26-461.0, Administrative Building Code. The air duct opening shall not exceed 57 sq. inches per 100 sq. ft. of ceiling area. Light fixture of a size of 2'-0" x 4'-0", and not exceeding 12 sq. ft. per 100 sq. ft. of ceiling area.

The Committee further recommends that the loads as set forth in the applicant's catalogue #270, as presently approved, be accepted for use in Hi-Bond Composite Beam Design as set forth in the applicant's catalogue designated as Inland's Design Manual for Building Construction Catalogue 272, on condition that the requirements of Local Law 74 of 1962 be complied with; that the concrete be a stone concrete having a minimum strength of 3000 p.s.i., and the fiber stress in the steel shall not exceed 20,000 p.s.i., and that all other requirements of the resolution adopted June

APPLICANT—Newark Ladder & Bracket Company, Inc., owner.

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: Melvin North.

ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Chairman Foley, Vice Chairman Kleinert, Commissioner Becker and Commissioner Klein 4

Negative: Commissioner Fox 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 936-62-SM—Newark Ladder & Bracket Company, Inc., Clark, New Jersey, filed for approval of the material known as Newark Tubular Sectional Scaffolding 5'-0" x 2'-6", Ladder Frame Dwg. 062504, under the provisions of C26-178.0 Administrative Building Code and the Rules of the Board adopted under Calendar Number 784-41-SR.

PROPOSED USE: Steel scaffolding, intended to replace the usual form of timber scaffolding in the three classes, light, medium and heavy duty, for uses as set forth in the Demolition Rules of the Board.

DESCRIPTION: The assembly consists of steel frames, braces and accessories which are assembled to form a scaffold. The frames are connected to each other by diagonal cross braces. Connectors, called sprockets, set into the upper ends of the frame tubes, permitting other sections to be added to the top of the lower section. The top section is fitted with railings, toe boards and scaffolding planks. Adequate sills at the bottom and suitable tie-ins to the building for structure safety are provided.

The frame is the basic unit and consists of the end posts, cross tubes and stiffening braces.

The legs are of 13 gauge (0.090) and the cross tubes or bearers are 14 gauge (0.076).

The material used in this scaffold is the same as that used in the scaffold approved under Calendar Number 189-61-SM, approved June 20, 1961, and the difference between the two frames is that the requested frame is 5'-0" high by 30" in width and the spacing is to be 30" x 7'-0". whereas the presently approved is adapted for a spacing of 5'-0" x 7'-0".

INSPECTION AND TEST: In view of the construction of this ladder frame being of the same material and differing only as to the spacing as describing and as the applicant is not requesting any additional loads or heights, it was decided that no additional load tests would be required.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the inspection and test and the data filed by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends the approval, under provisions of C26-178.0 Administrative Building Code and Rule 7.5.18 of the Rules of the Board, of the Newark Tubular Sectional Scaffold as manufactured by the Newark Ladder & Bracket Company of materials as herein described and constructed in accordance with the description above, for uses as defined in the Rules of the Board with limitations as to the height for definite bent spacing as set forth in the following tables:

1. Heavy Duty Scaffold: as defined by Rule 1.24.3 of the Demolition Rules of the Board:—Maximum live load; 75 lbs. per sq. ft.
Span in ft. between bents - 7'-0"
Maximum height above baseplate - 60'-0"
2. Medium Duty Scaffold: as defined by Rule 1.24.10 of the Demolition Rules of the Board:—Maximum live load; 50 lbs. per sq. ft.
Span in ft. between bents - 7'-0"
Maximum height above baseplate - 125'-0"
3. Light Duty Scaffold: as defined by Rule 1.24.7 of the Demolition Rules of the Board: Maximum live load, 25 lbs. per sq. ft.
Span in ft. between - 7'-0"
Maximum heights above base plate - 125'-0"

The Committee further recommends that during the course of erection and all time thereafter, the scaffold hereby recommended for approval under this report shall be adequately tied to the building every two stories, but not more than 24'-0" vertically and every 28'-0" horizontally.

The Committee further recommends that the frames shall set on suitable sills if minimum size 2" x 12" but in all cases the owner-manufacturer shall submit his erection plans to the Department of Buildings so that all the methods of construction outlined in this report and the subsurface conditions may be investigated and checked.

The Committee further recommends that sign shall be conspicuously posted every 50' along the planked platform levels showing the allowable live load per sq. ft. permitted on the planking and that all the component parts of the scaffold shall be kept in a perfect state of repair properly painted or otherwise treated to prevent corrosion or decay.

The Committee further recommends that the erection and design of scaffolds, hereby recommended for approval under this report, shall be under the responsible supervision of the owner-manufacturer of the scaffold and that all scaffolds erected under the conditions of this report shall be stamped, marked and labeled as follows: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 936-62-SM".

The Committee further recommends that this type of scaffold may be used as a hoist tower, on condition that the live load shall not exceed 4500 lbs., that the height of the tower shall not exceed 125'-0" in height and the maximum size of the hoist shall be based on an 8'-0" x 6'-6" base arrangement and further, that when the scaffolding is used as a hoist tower, the tower shall be adequately tied to the building as provided for and in the same manner as when the equipment is used as a scaffold.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
586-64-SM—National Gypsum Company, Buffalo, New York, filed for approval of the material known as Gold Bond ½" and ⅝" SUPER X Fire-Shield Gypsum Wallboard for use as ceiling fireproofing in fire rated floor-ceiling assemblies under the provisions of C26-88.0, C26-191.0, C26-239.0, C26-240.0, C26-241.0, and C26-609.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Ceiling fireproofing in fire rated floor-ceiling assemblies. Interior incombustible finish.

DESCRIPTION: The wallboard is incombustible and is basically identical with the material previously approved under Cal. No. 439-52-SM, except that the core contains special incombustible proprietary additives which increase its fire resistive properties. It is produced in thickness of ⅝", is 4' wide with square, beveled or tapered edges and is supplied in lengths up to 16'.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Fire resistance tests as herein described were conducted at Underwriters' Laboratories, Chicago, in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code. The test reports hereinafter referenced have been filed with and are part of the record. In the construction tested under U. L. R3501-25, the floor consisted of 2½" sand-gravel concrete on ⅜" rib metal lath, previously approved under Cal. No. 342-39-SM, over steel joists spaced 24" o.c. Gold Bond Drywall Furring Channels, previously approved under Cal. No. 439-52-SM, were attached directly to the lower chords of the steel joists with double strands of 18 gauge tie wire and were spaced 24" o.c. The ⅝" Gold Bond SUPER X Fire-Shield Gypsum Wallboard was installed below attached to the Drywall Furring Channels with 1" self-drilling sheet metal screws spaced 12" o.c. Additional sections of furring channels were used at wallboard end joints which occurred between the main furring channels. Joints and screw heads may be exposed or covered with a joint compound system. This assembly met all criteria for a 3-hour fire resistive rating.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends approval for use of the material known ⅝" Gold Bond SUPER X Fire-Shield Gypsum Wallboard as incombustible interior finish where a fire rating is not required and for use of the ⅝" thick material as ceiling fireproofing in a 3-hour fire resistive roof or floor-ceiling in an assembly as hereinbefore identified with U.L. Report R3501-25, on condition that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of these constructions shall be stamped: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 586-64-SM", and all bundles or pieces of Gold Bond SUPER X Fire-Shield Gypsum Wallboard shall be similarly marked.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 1032-64-SA—Hastings Air Conditioning Company, Hastings, Nebraska, filed for approval of the Hastings Direct Gas-Fired Make-Up Heater, Models LB-6-A through LB-50-E under the provisions of C26-191.0 and Article 12, Chap. 26, Administrative Building Code. These heaters will also be marketed by Lennox Industries, Inc., Syracuse, New York, under their model designations.

PROPOSED USE: To supply heated air to factory areas in which mechanical exhaust, used in process work such as paint spraying, paint baking, etc., exhausts an excessive quantity of the regular heat supply.

DESCRIPTION: The Hastings gas-fired make-up heaters are made in 17 sizes with heated air deliveries ranging from 6000 cfm and 360,000 Btu per hour for the LB-6 to 50,000 cfm and 5,380,000 Btu per hour maximum for the LB-50. Suffix letters A, B, C, D, and E are used in the model designation to indicate the temperature rise of the air supplied, 50°F, 60°F, 70°F, 80°F, and 90°F, respectively.

Each heater is made up of three sections, a filter section which is optional, a burner section containing Maxon or Midcontinent line burners, and a blower section for air flow through the heater and to the discharge air louvers or duct work. All combustion air is to be taken from outdoors.

The sequence of operation requires first starting the blower. The blower proving switch then energizes the control circuit and the spark ignitor lights an intermittent pilot. A flame rod is used to prove the pilot flame and an RA 890 E relay energizes the main gas valve. A control bulb modulates the gas valve to provide constant leaving air temperature.

Safety controls will prevent the burner operation if outside air temperature is too warm, if discharge temperature exceeds 120°F, blower stops, if pilot fails to light, and if gas pressure is too high or low.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A LB-25 unit rated at 2,500,000 Btu, burning natural gas, was tested at the premises of the applicant. Test results indicated a top concentration of 1800 parts per million for carbon dioxide and 10 parts per million for carbon monoxide in the combustion products. These concentrations are well below the safe limits as established by the U.S. Public Health Service.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Hastings Direct Gas-Fired Make-Up Heater, Models LB-6-A through LB-50-E for use in New York City as make-up air heaters to replace air being exhausted through process equipment, provided that the exhaust system and air heater are electrically interlocked so that the heater cannot be operated unless the exhaust is in operation and that, with the exception of a flue connection, the heater installation shall conform to Article 12, Chap. 26, Administrative Building Code and, where applicable, the Paint Spray Rules of the Board, and further that each heater shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 1032-64-SA".

The Committee further recommends that these heaters may be marketed by Lennox Industries, Inc., Syracuse, New York, as their models LLB-6-A through LLB-50-E.

COURT DECISION.

Matter of Baron vs. Foley:—At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Brown rendered the following decision in the New York Law Journal of May 26, 1965, page 17:

"This is an article 78 proceeding which requests an order directing the respondents to accept petitioner's application for an extension of the period within which to complete construction of a building, retroactive to December 15, 1965, and to act upon such application. The failure to file the application on time was unintentional. On January 29, 1965 the respondent Board of Standards and Appeals of the City of New York returned to petitioner's late application and took the position that it had no authority to accept the late application. The situation presented is strikingly similar to the situation in Morkin Realty Corp'n. v. Foley, N. Y. L. J., May 4, 1965, p. 18, c. 3, in which petitioner's position was sustained. Application granted. Settle order. Calendar Number 2796-BZY; Premises 1855 East 12th Street, Block No. 6818, Lot No. 74, Borough of Brooklyn and Calendar Number 2799-BZY; Premises 1075 Sheepshead Bay Road, Block No. 7397, Lot No 1, Borough of Brooklyn"

COURT DECISION.

Matter of Isenburger v. Foley:—On March 2, 1965, the Board granted under Section 11-324 of the Zoning Resolution for minor development, the extension of time to complete construction to December 15, 1965 Calendar Number 316-63-BZY—Vol. II, Premises 208-14 Central Park South, Block 1030, Lots 39, 40, 51 and 42, Borough of Manhattan.

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Chimera rendered the following decision:

"This is a proceeding pursuant to Article 78 of the CPLR brought by certain statutory tenants individually and in a representative capacity wherein they seek review of a determination of the Board of Standards and Appeals which granted their landlord an extension of time for the construction of a multiple dwelling to replace the existing premises..... Petitioners lack standing to sue either in representative or individual capacities, and accordingly the petition must be dismissed.....Accordingly, petitioners' application is denied, the intervenor-respondent's cross-motion is granted and the petition is dismissed."

One-half inch sanded gypsum plaster, mixed 100 lbs. gypsum to 200 lbs. sand, was applied over the gypsum lath (plaster thickness includes 1/16" of lime-putty finish coat). The partition successfully met the requirements of a one-hour fire resistive non load bearing partition.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends approval for use of the partition hereinbefore described as a incombustible non load bearing 1-hour fire resistive partition, on condition that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be stamped: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 62-63-SM".

PROPOSED USE: 2 Hr. fire resistive floor or roof & ceiling construction & 4 Hr. beam. Ceiling fireproofing in fire rated floor-ceilings (2-Hour).

DESCRIPTION: The panels are identical in composition to the material previously approved under Cal. No. 616-60-SM, and are supplied $\frac{5}{8}$ " x 23- $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 23- $\frac{3}{4}$ " or 23- $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 47- $\frac{3}{4}$ " in size with a textured, smooth, fissured or needle perforated surface with (ventilating) or without through perforations. The surface is painted and may include a metallic veil overspray coating or Plasticrylic washable surface.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Floor-ceiling fire resistive tests were conducted by Underwriters' Laboratories, Chicago, in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code. Tests were reported under U. L. Retardants R4337-8 and R4337-17, one without and one with light fixtures and air ducts in the ceiling, which are on file with and part of the record. A composite description follows: Two and one-half inch sand-gravel concrete over blend or singular type steel deck consisting of uniform cellular or large flat-faced cellular and fluted steel floor units supported by a steel beam. $\frac{5}{8}$ " x 23- $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 23- $\frac{3}{4}$ " or 23- $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 47- $\frac{3}{4}$ " regular or ventilating Gold Bond Fire-Shield Solitude Grid Panels suspended below supported on all edges by metal exposed grid suspension system consisting of main and cross tees

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

607-63-SA—Haus & Bresin for The Lientz Co., Kansas City, Missouri, filed for approval of the appliance known as Flametech Burner, Models PG, PGO, PGO2, PGO6; 20-750 HP, under the provisions of Article 12, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code and the Oil Burner Rules of the Board.

PROPOSED USE: Gas and/or oil burner.

DESCRIPTION: These burners range in size from 40 to 800 HP and are designed to fire Natural or LP gases and/or No. 2, 4, 5, or 6 oil.

These burners are made in four series. The PG series is for burning gas only. The PGO series is a combination burner for either gas or various grades of fuel oil. The PGO2 series is set to burn either gas or #2 fuel oil. The PGO6 series is set to burn either gas or #6 fuel oil. Each of these series is made in various models ranging from Model A20 to Model F750. These models are basically identical except for a variation in capacity.

Gas is introduced into the air stream through radial multi-jet burner tips that surround the oil burner head. Oil atomization is by pressure on light oils from 10 to 50 GPH and by air on light or heavy oils from 10 to 250 GPH.

II Ignition:

All units use electrically ignited gas pilots to ignite the main fuel.

An ignition orifice is provided in the end or tip of each gas spud to provide smooth lighting of gas fuels.

The gas pilot nozzle is positioned behind the primary air cone surrounding the oil nozzle. The pilot flame is placed four inches ahead of the oil nozzle and six to eight inches ahead of the pilot nozzle.

III Gas:

A gas ring surrounds the burner head. An extremely fine break up of the gas is accomplished by radial multi-jet gas tips which are screwed into the ring tangentially.

Combination Natural Gas—LP Gas burners are available. These units are provided with separate gas valve trains for each fuel.

IV Oil:

a. Pressure Atomized Units

The pressure oil unit includes a 300 PSIG Webster oil pump-motor unit and all necessary accessories to atomize the oil for proper combustion. A North American model 240 oil metering valve in the return oil line varies the back pressure on a Delevan Vari-flow oil nozzle. Oil back pressure runs from approximately 80 PSIG at low fire to 160 PSIG at high fire.

Initial air-oil mixing flame shaping is accomplished by the air cone surrounding the nozzle.

b. Air Atomized Oil Units

The air/oil unit includes a Gast 1065 or 2065 Air pump, a Tuthill LPFVK oil pump, Monarch Air oil nozzle and a Wells COAAQ electric pre-heater. An M.H. PA404B wired in series with General K-10 oil valve proves proper air pump operation at all times. (Heavy oils are heated to provide 150 to 175 SSU oil to the nozzle.)

V Controls:

All units provide full modulation with a proved low fire start. Fuel and air supply are regulated throughout the firing range by an M.H. M931A modutrol motor.

All units feature as standard a Fireye FP-2 model 6018 electronic flame safeguard providing safety and programming to assure safe operation with pre-purge and proved ignition on all fuels. The Fireye contains a safety cut-off which will cut off fuel in from four to six seconds in the event of pilot failure. Enforced low fire start is provided through an M.H. Q441B motor operated interlock. Cleveland Controls air switch, models FS-ABO proves blower operation at all times.

Combination burners are switched from gas to oil or from oil to gas by the Fuel Transfer Switch mounted on the control panel.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The burners have been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories under File MP-3031.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Flametech Burner, Models PG, PGO, PGO2, PGO6; 20-750 HP for use in New York City when installed in accordance with the requirements of Article 12, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code and the Oil Burner Rules of the Board, and further that the burner bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 607-63-SA".

for approval of the material known as 1-9/16 inch Thermostone Transitop Panel under the provisions of C26-591.0 and C26-592.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: One-hour fire resistive non load bearing partition 1-9/16" in thickness.

DESCRIPTION: The material is a sandwich panel consisting of a core of Thermostone faced on both faces with J. M. Asbestos Flexboard.

Thermostone is composed of blended fibers and inorganic binders, and Flexboard is made of asbestos fibers and Portland Cement.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A partition was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories in accordance with the requirements of C26-591.0 and C26-592.0, Administrative Building Code. The construction was as follows:

The panels are attached to 2-1/2" x 2-1/2" x 1/2" steel angles at the floor and ceiling by means of 5/16"-18 by 1-1/2" long machine screws and expansion shields spaced 24" on centers. A center girt of 2-1/2" x 2-1/2" x 1/2" angle is applied in a horizontal position, midway of the height of the partition.

The panels have a 1-3/8" deep by 1/8" wide cut along the long edge of the panel to form grooves for the insertion of metal splines, 2-1/2" wide of 18 gauge zinc-coated steel.

The panels are set in place and a caulking compound is inserted in the groove and then the metal spline is inserted in the groove. Caulking compound is then applied along the vertical edge of the second panel and it is butted tight against the first panel. Asbestos cement battens, 1/4" thick by 4" wide are placed on both sides of the assembly over the joints, formed by adjacent panels. These battens are attached to the panels with No. 8 by 3/4" long self-tapping screws spaced 12" on centers vertically. The panels are also attached to the center girt with 1/4" by 7" long flat head bolts, with combination washer and seal, extending through the units and bolted to 3/8" thick by 1" wide "U" shaped clips hooked to the angle girt.

The construction is in accordance with Drawing #21539-4 contained in R 4662-7 and 8, which is on file with and is part of the record.

The partition successfully met the requirements of a one-hour fire resistive non load bearing partition.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Thermostone Transitop Panel 1-9/16" in thickness & maximum height of 10'-0" as herein described for voluntary use in New York City as a one-hour fire resistive non load bearing partition under the pertinent provisions of the Administrative Building Code, on condition that the construction shall be as herein described and in accordance with Drawing 21539-4 contained in R 4662-7 and 8, which is on file with and is part of the record, and on condition that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be labeled, "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 1076-64-SM", and the cartons in which the material is marketed shall be similarly marked.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

1156-64-SM—Wood Conversion Company, St. Paul, Minnesota, filed for approval of the material known as Lo-Tone FR Acoustical Tile as a component part of a two-hour fire resistive floor construction under the provisions of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Two-hour fire resistive floor construction.

DESCRIPTION: The tile 24" x 48" x 5/8" is manufactured in a fissured pattern with ventilating slots. The slots are 1/8" wide by 1-3/8" long on 6" intervals. The slot itself is 1/8" deep from the bottom, from 1/2" to 3/4" wide.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The tile was tested as a component part of a fire resistive floor construction at the Underwriters' Laboratories in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code.

The construction consisted of bar joists, spaced 24" on centers, laterally bridged with 1/2" diameter steel bars welded to the top and bottom flanges of the joists. Metal lath is then placed on top of the joists and secured with tie wires. A 2 1/2" topping of concrete is then poured over the steel joists. This concrete is reinforced with 6 x 6 - 8 wire mesh.

Hanger wires of 12 gauge steel are suspended from the bottom chords of the joists on 2'-0" centers to carry the main suspension system of main runners and cross tees.

The main runners of 25 gauge steel are placed at right angles to the joists and attached to the above-described hanger wires. These main runners are placed 4'-0" on centers.

Cross tees, also of 25 gauge steel, are then placed perpendicular to the main runners on 2'-0" centers and are locked in position.

The tiles are then installed resting on the flanges of both the main runners and cross tees.

The construction is in accordance with Dwg. 1 R-4355-10, which is on file with and is part of the record.

The construction successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive floor construction. The complete report R-4355-10 is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Lo-Tone FR Acoustical Tile as a component part of a two-hour fire resistive floor construction when the floor is constructed as herein described and in accordance with the drawings herein mentioned. In cases where the ceiling is dropped more than 6 inches below the bottom flanges of the joists. Then a suspended ceiling as set forth under C26-461.0, Administrative Building Code shall be used instead of the wire suspension system. All plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Stand-

PROPOSED USE: Incombustible acoustical tile used as a component part of a three-hour fire resistive floor and/or ceiling, and the tile to be rated as a two-hour fire resistive material in itself.

DESCRIPTION: The construction is a floor and ceiling assembly, consisting of a 3 inch thick concrete floor supported by open-web steel joists and protected with a suspended ceiling of 12 inch by 12 inch by ¾ inch thick acoustical tile.

The tile used in the construction is the same tile as approved for the same manufacturer under Cal. No. 629-61-SM.

In construction, the open-web joists are first installed and are bridged by means of horizontal bridging bars welded to the upper and lower chords of the joists. Metal lath is then placed on top of the joists and is tied on 9 inch centers. Ready-mix concrete, reinforced with 6 x 6-10 wire mesh, is poured over the lath to a depth of 3 inches over the joists.

"Z" runners are installed 12 inches on center at right angles to the joists and are clipped to the lower flange of the joists by a wire clip. The tile is installed by inserting the legs of the "Z" runners in the kerf of the tile and short lengths of flat spline are inserted in kerfs between the adjacent tiles in a row. The construction is in accordance with Drawing R 4349-19, which is on file with and is part of the record.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The construction was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories and successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive floor. The construction was such that the ceiling system was in contact with the lower flanges of the joists and the temperatures were recorded on the flanges of the joists. The temperature rise did not exceed 800°F for a period in excess of two hours as permitted under C26-600.0 through C26-603.0, Administrative Building Code for use as a short span ceiling for the protection of structural steel. The complete report U.L. R 4349-19 is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Celotex Protectone Mineral Fiber Incombustible Acoustical Tile as a component part of a three-hour fire resistive floor and/or roof construction, under the provisions of C26-239.0, Administrative Building Code, on condition that approved joists installed in accordance with their approval, be used, and that the construction be in accordance with Drawing R 4349-19, which is on file with the application and that the same Celotex Protectone Mineral Fiber incombustible acoustical tile be approved for use as a short-span two-hour fire resistive ceiling, on condition that all other requirements be complied with. The Committee further recommends that this latter construction shall not be considered as part of the rated fire resistive floor construction.

Plans filed with the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of both these constructions shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 1209-64-SM".

2) Blades—are made of 18 gauge steel. The top blades of the damper are secured to the top of the frame by two axles, one at each corner, engaged in an 18 gauge housing. Each other blade engages the interlocking portion of the blade above it. The blades are held in the open position by steel straps and fusible links. The maximum clearance between the blades and the frame is $\frac{1}{4}$ inch.

The construction of the dampers is as shown on Dwgs. 2 and 3, as contained in the Underwriter's Report R-4708-4, which is on file with and which is part of the record.

The difference between the 118-F/SV and the 118-F/SH is that the SV is for vertical installation and is operated by gravity. The SH is for horizontal installation and is operated by a stainless steel spring. The V/L-119V is the same construction as the SV and SH, differences being that it bears a U.L. label.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The U/L-119V was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories and successfully met the requirements of a one and one-half hour fire resistive fire damper. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

Cal. No. 171-65-SM—Universal Atlas Cement, Division of United States Steel Corp., owner, filed for approval of the material known as Atlas Portland Cement, Type I—Type II, as manufactured by Bahama Cement Company, Subsidiary of the United States Steel Corp., at their plant located at Freeport, Grand Bahama Island. The application was filed under the provisions of C26-312.0 of the Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Cement used for concrete and concrete products.

DESCRIPTION: The clinker for Type I—Type II Portland Cement is manufactured at this plant by the wet process. The coral limestone open-pit quarry is located adjacent to the plant and consists of 1700 acres, more than fifty feet thick, sufficient for more than 100 years of operation.

The raw materials used for the cement are as follows:

1. Coral limestone containing 95 to 99% CaCO_3 .
2. Bauxite, non-metallurgical grade, obtained from Jamaica. Typical analysis 10% SiO_2 , 45% Al_2O_3 , 18% Fe_2O_3 , and 27% loss on ignition. Bauxite is used to supply the Alumina content of the clinker.
3. Dune sand containing 96 to 99% SiO_2 is obtained from Fort Pierce, Florida. Sand is used as the main source of Silica for the clinker.
4. Iron ore concentrate containing about 92% Fe_2O_3 is obtained from Canada. When required, this material is used to supplement the iron content of the clinker.
5. Gypsum with about 44% SO_3 content is obtained from Jamaica and Nova Scotia.

The basic coral limestone is quarried with a power shovel and trucks; then transported to a 500 H.P. Hammermill crusher. It is moved from the crusher to storage bins by conveyor belt.

Bauxite, gypsum, sand, and iron ore are unloaded at a dock close to the plant and conveyed by belt to storage bins.

Bauxite is fed to a wash mill and emerges as a slurry containing about 65% water. It is delivered to a storage tank and metered under control to the raw grinding circuit.

Sand, plus required iron ore, is fed by automatic weighing equipment into a separate wet grinding mill where it is preground and fed to the raw grinding circuit.

There are two, two-compartment raw grinding mills in the raw grinding process. Bauxite slurry, sand-iron ore slurry and crushed limestone are introduced into these raw grinding mills, and the final slurry is pumped into two slurry mixing basins. From the slurry mixing basins, the slurry is transferred to two large open kiln feed tanks. The slurry is introduced into the upper end of the kilns from the feed tanks. The two kilns are each 575 feet long, brick-lined steel cylinders rotating once a minute producing 594 barrels of clinker each hour. Both kilns are oil-fired using Bunker "C" oil which heats the kiln charge to approximately 2800°F. as the material nears the discharge of each kiln. The clinker is discharged from the kilns in air quenching grate type coolers and delivered to a clinker storage building.

From the clinker storage building, the clinker is conveyed by belt to mill feed bins. Gypsum is added to the clinker and the mixture is ground in three finishing mills. The finished cement is pumped from each mill to a group of nine large storage silos.

The cement from these silos is pumped directly into specifically designed bulk cement ocean-going cargo vessels.

METHODS OF CONTROL:

- (1) All imported materials are sampled dockside, analyzed, and checked for uniformity.

- (2) Samples from the limestone crusher are analyzed every two days.

- (3) Two-hour samples automatically taken from the raw mill slurry containing sand, bauxite, iron, and limestone are tested for chemical composition moisture and fineness.

- (4) Every four hours, samples are taken from the kiln feed tank and analyzed to check on the raw mill slurry samples.

- (5) Two-hour samples of clinker are obtained at cooler discharge. Free lime is determined on 8-hour composite samples. A daily composite sample is analyzed to determine complete chemical composition.

- (6) Two-hour samples of finished cement are taken continuously and the following tests are made:

- a. Blaine test for fineness.
- b. Fineness by 325 mesh sieve.
- c. SO_3 test.
- d. Gillmore setting time test.

- (7) The two-hour finished cement samples are blended to a daily composite and given the following tests:

- (a) Wagner test for fineness.
- (b) Blaine test for fineness.
- (c) Fineness by 325 mesh sieve.
- (d) Gillmore setting time test.
- (e) Vicat setting time test.
- (f) Air content determination.
- (g) Autoclave expansion.
- (h) Compressive strength.
- (i) Tensile strength.
- (j) Complete chemical analysis.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The Freeport, Grand Bahama Island plant of the applicant was inspected by a Committee on Test consisting of Director William A. Nolan and Civil Engineer, James B. Anderson, Jr. Samples of the finished cement were taken at the plant by the Committee on Test and shipped to Haller Testing Laboratories, Plainfield, New Jersey. The tested cement was found to be in compliance with ASTM requirements for Type I—Type II Portland Cement.

The laboratory at the plant is fully air conditioned for temperature control and has all the equipment necessary for testing in accordance with ASTM requirements. A representative of the Cement and Concrete Reference Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards was at the laboratory May 4, 5 and 6th, 1965, and found that the laboratory met all their physical requirements.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the inspection and data, filed by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Atlas Portland Cement Type I—Type II, as manufactured at the Freeport, Grand Bahama Island Plant of the Bahama Cement Co., Universal Atlas Cement, Division of the United States Steel Corporation. This cement may be used in New York City under the provisions of C26-312.0 of the Administrative Building Code. The owner shall submit monthly for a period of six months from the date of this resolution, and annually thereafter, a certified copy of plant laboratory reports certifying that all cement manufactured at the applicant's plant and shipped into New York City complied with all requirements of this resolution and including ASTM C150-63 specifications.

The Committee further recommends that all bulk shipment of the cement shall be adequately protected during shipment so as to preclude the possibility of any moisture entering into the spaces in which the cement is stored, and all ocean bills of lading shall be stamped: "Approved by
